THE IACP TO HOLD TECHNOLOGY AND POLICY SYMPOSIUM: ENHANCING PUBLIC SAFETY THROUGH VIDEO TECHNOLOGY

San Diego, CA- The International Association of Chiefs of Police (IACP) is joining with the U.S. Department of Justice's National Institute of Justice (NIJ) to sponsor a technology and policy symposium titled: Enhancing Public Safety Through Video Technology. This symposium will bring together more than 100 public safety and industry experts to examine the latest video technologies and to discuss the complex public policy issues involved in the acquisition, deployment, and evaluation of public surveillance systems. The symposium will also include educational sessions on video technology from leading experts in the field, technology demonstrations, and an exploration of legal, policy, and privacy issues associated with public surveillance initiatives.

Technology and policy experts will be available for questions and there will be an opportunity to test products and equipment.

WHO: The International Association of Chiefs of Police and the National Institute of Justice

WHAT: Enhancing Public Safety Through Video Technology Symposium

WHEN: February 12-14, 2008
